Clearing the Air
The Health and Economic Damages of Air Pollution in China
edited by Mun S. Ho and Chris P. Nielsen
"There is no such detailed, comprehensive analysis of this topic. All in all, a commendable effort." — Vaclav Smil, University of Manitoba 392 pp., 65 illus. in color and black & white $50 cloth

Degrees That Matter
Climate Change and the University
Ann Rappaport and Sarah Hammond Creighton foreword by Lawrence Bacow
"Anyone who wishes to stem global warming in ways sensitive to the practical realities of running schools and businesses will want to read this terrific contribution to the field of higher education stewardship." — Julian Keniry, Director, Campus and Community Leadership, National Wildlife Federation, and author of Ecodemia
376 pp., 12 illus. $24.95 paper

New books from The MIT Press

Sustainability or Collapse?
An Integrated History and Future of People on Earth
edited by Robert Costanza, Lisa J. Graumlich, and Will Steffen
"This important book presents the first installment of what promises to develop into a seminal study of human-environment interactions treated as a complex and dynamic system. We can profit greatly from this installment, while eagerly awaiting more to come." — Oran Young, Professor, Bren School of Environmental Science and Management, University of California, Santa Barbara
Dahlem Workshop Reports series
520 pp., 47 illus. $38 cloth
